---

In one of the BYU classes on farming, they cover the subject of dowsing for water briefly.

STEP 1: Making your own dowsing rods:

You will need two metal rods, each about 50 cm (20 inches) in length.

You can use an old shirt hanger as a source of wire.

You need to bend the wire (see the picture) to obtain two identical rods with "handles", so that there is a straight angle (90 degrees) between the handle and the main part of the rod.

The handles should be approx. 10 cm (4 in) long.

STEP 2: Holding you're dowsing rods:

It is crucial to hold the rods properly.

You should place the handle of the dowsing rod in the middle of your palm, and then close your hand.

Do not squeeze the rods too tight, they will not move.

Hold them in such a way that the main part of the rod is parallel to the ground and attempt to keep them in that position at all times.

STEP 3: Using your dowsing rods:

Now is the time to test your new rods.

Start walking slowly along a straight line holding the rods as described above.

You may notice that your rods move "by themselves" and cross over certain points as depicted on the drawing on the below.

Remember location of these points and walk over them again - if you get same results repeatedly - you probably have talent for dowsing for water...

GOOD LUCK!
